NETFLIX REVOLT

CUSTOMERS TAKE TO THE WEB TO PROTEST SUBSCRIPTION PRICE HIKE

CNN

If Netflix had filed Tuesday's price-hike news in a movie genre, it would be either drama or horror.

U.S. customers of the DVD-by-mail and Web-streaming service are storming the Internet to protest Netflix's plan to increase the prices of its most popular packages.

"The changes you guys have made in the last 4-6 months have turned me from a serious Netflix Geek into considering cancellation. It's a damn shame," wrote Justin Block, one of almost 6,000 commenters on Netflix's blog.

Netflix's Facebook page attracted more than 28,000 comments as of Wednesday morning, most of them critical of the move. And thousands of consumers were voicing complaints under #DearNetflix on Twitter.

Netflix has adjusted its offerings, separating physical disc mailings from Internet video. DVD-only subscriptions start at $7.99 per month, the same price as a streaming-only plan. But a monthly plan that combines physical DVDs with Web streaming costs almost $16—a 60 percent price increase.

For prospective customers, the new pricing structure went into effect Tuesday. For current subscribers, the rates will change Sept. 1.

NEW PRICE BREAKDOWN

DVD-only subscription
(starting at $7.99 alone)

Streaming-only subscription
(starting at $7.99 alone)

= $16

(price for combined DVD and streaming subscription, a 60% increase)

Netflix, which did not respond to a request for comment, outlined the adjustment in a company blog post. In the message, a spokeswoman was very upbeat, describing each plan as "a terrific value."

Commenters weren't as enthusiastic.

"The only way that this is terrific for the customer is if you plan to offer your entire collection available for streaming," wrote Scotty Fagaly, a self-described longtime customer whose comment was "liked" more than 4,800 times. "Otherwise, this is just yet another way to choke more change out of your customers."

Netflix has more than 23 million subscribers. The company has a very popular online streaming program that's available on dozens of electronic devices, including computers, video-game systems, TV set-top boxes, smartphones and tablets. In Canada, Netflix offers only the streaming service, not the DVD mailings.

However, the streaming program's convenience is sometimes overshadowed by its lack of quality movies available for streaming, relative to those contained in Netflix's extensive DVD catalog.

No. 1

Among many consumers, Netflix is beloved. The company has ranked No. 1 for customer satisfaction in four consecutive years, according to surveys by market research firm ForeSee Results. CNN

Boystown needs a reality check

I still can't seem to get through the gruesome YouTube video of the stabbing that took place in Boystown on July 3. It shows Rubin Robinson, a 25-year-old black man from Englewood, being punched and kicked by several other black men. He then stumbles into a wall, bloodied and wounded.

The melee, which took place over Black Pride weekend, has become the latest example of what some Boystown residents say is an alarming increase in violence from—and I'm paraphrasing here—the South and West sides who have started coming to their neighborhood. It's not a race issue, they say; it's a safety issue.

This recent spate of violence has caused some neighbors to create a "Take Back Boystown" page on Facebook, which implores local leaders to address the problems and has more than 3,600 "likes."

I get it. These are some serious crimes taking place on their doorsteps, and that's pretty scary. But let's be honest: This outrage isn't about crime. It's about young black men and women coming to the North Side and making white people feel really uncomfortable. This is, in fact, a race thing, and the recent crimes are merely an excuse to vent veiled racism. I know it because I have experienced it.

As a gay man from the South Side, I understand the plight of the youth who are congregating in Boystown. We have no place to go on the South or West sides where we can be ourselves. Boystown is the one place where we can be "us" without looking over our shoulders, worried about whether we'll be verbally or physically attacked.

I don't visit Boystown as often these days, but it wasn't that long ago that I was that gay black teenager going to the North Side to walk around Halsted, take in the openly gay atmosphere and mingle with the locals. My friends and I used the neighborhood as meeting spots to talk and laugh in ways that just wouldn't be possible on the West or South sides.

But we didn't always get a warm reception. I vividly remember the strange looks from the locals that made us feel unwelcome in the one part of the city where we most wanted to belong. At the restaurants, service would be extra slow—even when the place was empty. It wasn't overt racism, but the message was clear: We weren't always welcome.

Many of the black men and women in their teens and 20s who hang out in Boystown do so because they don't feel comfortable being openly gay in their own communities. It can be frightening—and sometimes dangerous. Boystown residents should feel honored to have such a diverse group of people who want to be a part of the community.

Like it or not, they're not going anywhere. Now, can we stop talking about "taking back" Boystown from the people who so desperately need it and start talking about how we can all get along?

That's the new admission price to Adler Planetarium for Chicago adults. Chicago Park District commissioners approved the $2 hike Wednesday that applies to everyone but city residents 11 and under. Charles Katzenmeyer, Adler's senior vice president, told Park District officials the institution needs the extra money to keep up with rising costs. And the No. 1 sugar daddy spot in Chicago is ...

By Leonor Vivanco

REDEYE

Think the best place to find a sugar daddy in Chicago is the Gold Coast's posh Viagra Triangle area? Well, think again.

That's according to niche dating site sugarsugar.com, which lists the East Bank Club in River North as the top spot to find "generous men" in Chicago.

The East Bank Club, which opened in 1980 and has more than 10,000 members, had no immediate comment.

Sugarsugar.com bills itself as a place for "generous men looking to spoil, and dynamic women looking for financial support with bills, or who just need some excitement in life."

So how did the club—with monthly dues of $175 per person older than 25—end up on the list?

The dating site compiled its list of "Top Sugar Dating Hot Spots" in 10 U.S. cities from online polling, responses on the site's blog and its members, according to its news release.

In announcing Chicago's hot spot Wednesday, sugarsugar.com described the fitness facility as a favorite with "Chicago politicians, eager women and deep pocketed businessmen."

Prepared for 'Potter' mania?

By Leonor Vivanco

REDEYE

Midnight screenings of "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2" were sold out Wednesday at several theaters across Chicago. The eighth installment of the wizard movie saga opens at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

Among the theaters to sell out: The New 400 Theaters in Rogers Park, which is showing the movie on two screens at midnight. Tickets to all 260 seats have been bought, said Tom Klein, theater co-owner and general manager. To prepare for the bombardment of Potter fans, Klein made a huge order this week for all the concession fare.

Klein suggested getting in line for the movie an hour before show time—at 11 p.m. Thursday. Moviegoers can claim seats once they are let into the theater half an hour later.

"With these big shows, no one really shows up late," Klein said. "This is like a big deal. People want to see this thing beginning to end." Latecomers will get the worst seats, he said.

"We warn them it's a sellout. Someone has to sit at that corner seat right up front and people know it going in," Klein said.

For this midnight showing, nobody bought blocks of tickets, as has happened in the past, he said.

"People who get here first will get their pick of seats. If we're not around and somebody blocks off a couple seats for their friends, good luck trying to hang on to them," he said. "Any time you have a sellout in anything with the entertainment business—even a big rock concert—people are going to be arguing over space."

AMC Theatres, including the River East 21 and Loews 600 North Michigan 9, typically allow people to save seats "within reason," said Ryan Noonan, corporate director of public relations. It is up to the managers' discretion to define what is within reason, he said.

"If guests start arriving early in the day, the theatres will be prepared and we'll be doing all we can to get guests seated in the auditoriums as early as possible," Noonan said.

For movie fans who don't like general admission seating, there is another option. The ShowPlace ICON at Roosevelt Collection in the South Loop allows "Harry Potter" moviegoers to buy their tickets online and reserve their seats for the midnight showing on any one of its 16 screens.

Cook slain on break

Chicago Tribune

Nearly 20 years ago, as Gregory Johnson's best friend, Joe Hudgins, lay on his deathbed, Johnson promised he would look out for the man's teenage son, Joshua.

He even assured his longtime friend that the son had a job for life at his barbecue restaurant.

So the teen began working at Alice's Bar-B-Q in Bronzeville and quickly impressed Johnson with his work ethic, his friendly personality and his skill at cooking ribs "quick and tender."

"He was bad on that pit. He'd cook that meat tender," Johnson said.

Joshua Hudgins was working the night shift

Monday, as he did six or seven evenings a week, when he stepped outside about 9 p.m. A light-colored car approached and opened fire at a "little gangbanger" who happened to be walking by, according to friends who were with Hudgins.

The shooter missed and instead hit Hudgins, 34, in the chest, killing him, according to a co-worker and police. Hudgins, of the 4900 block of South Champlain Avenue, was a "no nonsense" man who was focused on providing for his children, Johnson said.

"I've known Josh since he was born. He was a family man, and he was respected. That's why it is such a shame," he said.

Arrest No. 107

A 52-year-old man with 106 arrests on his record was arrested again Tuesday afternoon, accused of robbing a disabled person in Uptown, Chicago police said.

Beach beating charges

A man free on bail and awaiting trial in the 2008 slaying of a 10-year-old girl was arrested today on charges he and eight other people beat someone he thought was taking pictures of his girlfriend Sunday at a South Side beach, authorities said.

Wrigley rooftop foreclosure judgment

A bank has obtained a foreclosure judgment of more than $3 million against the owners of a building that houses a Wrigley Field rooftop club. The Lakeview Baseball Club is best known for the tote board under its rooftop seats that details the years elapsed since the Cubs' last division, league and World Series titles.

HOMICIDE TRACKER

By Tracy Swartz | REDEYE

Englewood saw three homicides in three days last week, a RedEye analysis of preliminary police data found.

On Saturday, two men were shot to death in the 6900 block of South Stewart Avenue, officials said. Three days earlier, an 18-year-old man was fatally shot in the 6100 block of South Normal Avenue, police said.

Englewood has logged 10 homicides so far this year, RedEye data shows. The community area recorded 14 homicides last year, RedEye determined.

Meanwhile, in neighboring West Englewood, two men were killed in separate incidents this week.

A 30-year-old man was shot and killed Monday in the 2000 block of West Marquette Road, police said. A day earlier, a 31-year-old man was stabbed to death in the 1200 block of West 64th Street, according to officials.

Citywide, gunshot fatalities were recorded in the last week in Auburn Gresham, East Side, Grand Boulevard, Fuller Park, Hegewisch, North Lawndale, South Shore, Washington Heights and West Pullman.

The victims—eight men and one woman—were between the ages of 18 and 34, RedEye data shows. Twenty-two homicides have been logged so far this month. Police recorded 42 homicides in July 2010, RedEye found.

INDIA ROCKED

OFFICIALS DUB BLAST 'TERROR ATTACKS'

7 MUMBAI Three bombs rocked crowded districts of Mumbai, India, during rush hour Wednesday, killing at least 21 people in the biggest militant attack on India's financial capital since 2008 assaults blamed on Pakistan-based militants.

India has remained jittery about the threat of militant strikes, especially since the Nov. 26, 2008, attacks that killed 166 people and raised tensions with nuclear-armed archrival Pakistan.

At least 141 people were wounded Wednesday and the death toll was at least 21, the Home Ministry said in statements about what it called "terror attacks" centred mainly on Mumbai's jewelry markets.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the blasts.

"This is another attack on the heart of India, heart of Mumbai. We will fully meet the challenge, we are much better prepared," Prithviraj

JEWELRY MARKETS

The biggest blast was at the Opera House, which now is an area where diamond jewelry is sold and is a hub for diamond traders. Pakistani-based militants carried out a bloody rampage in 2008 near this area.

Chavan, the state's chief minister, told an NDTV broadcaster, referring to the 2008 attacks.

Home Minister Palaniappan Chidambaram also said "terrorists" were to blame.

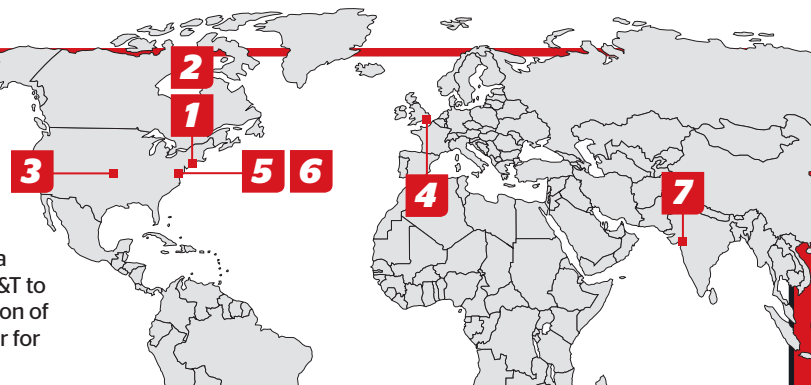

"The blast occurred at about 6.45 p.m. [local time] within minutes of each other. Therefore, we infer that this was a coordinated attack by terrorists," Chidambaram told reporters.

At least one car and a motorbike were used in the coordinated attacks in which improvised explosive devices were believed to have been used, officials said.

HATE HIM, PLEASE

WWE's John Cena expects rude welcome when he faces Chicago's CM Punk on Sunday

By Luis Gomez | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

John Cena loves Chicago—even if the feeling isn't exactly mutual.

The eight-time WWE champ and two-time world heavyweight champ made his debut at Allstate Arena in 2002 and headlined Wrestlemania in the same venue four years later. In his opinion, Chicago has one of the three best wrestling crowds in the country along with New York and Philadelphia.

But the Chicago area also is where Cena—the face of WWE and this generation's Hulk Hogan—was cursed out by the crowd in 2006 as he inducted former Bears star and Wrestlemania 2 participant William “Refrigerator” Perry into the WWE Hall of Fame at Rosemont Theatre.

“Chicago fans greeted me with a [bleep] you, Cena’ chant,” Cena said recently over the phone from Sydney, Australia, where WWE was touring. “Chicago fans cheer and boo who they want. They’re great fans whether they like me or not. They show you how they feel. I don’t like crowds that sit on their hands.”

The anti-Cena sentiment seems to have grown since then—think of Cena as the N.Y. Yankees in jean shorts—and it could reach a boiling point at the Money In the Bank pay-per-view Sunday at Allstate Arena (Coincidentally, the same Cena-Yanks comparison was made on “RAW” just hours after I filed this article). Cena will defend his WWE title against Lockport native and Bucktown resident CM Punk.

Cena has long claimed that the boos don’t bother him and said he actually is hoping for a hostile, anti-Cena environment.

“It would make for an interesting moment,” Cena said. “Those are the instances you most remember. CM Punk is truly very proud of his city, and I think the city embraces him for it. He wears the Chicago flag on his trunks. Whether it will be more anti-Cena or more pro-CM Punk, I think it will really be great.”

Adding drama to the match is the revelation that Punk is leaving WWE after the match, whether he wins or not. Punk’s exit has been rumored on the Internet for months due to his expiring contract and was turned into a storyline recently when he voiced his behind-the-scenes frustration with WWE on “Monday Night Raw.”

During the rant, Punk slammed WWE CEO Vince McMahon for surrounding himself with “yes men” and said the company has underachieved from a business standpoint.

As for Punk’s complaint that The Rock doesn’t deserve to headline Wrestlemania, WWE’s biggest show of the year—seeing how he left WWE for a Hollywood career as Dwayne Johnson—Cena said he understands where Punk is coming from.

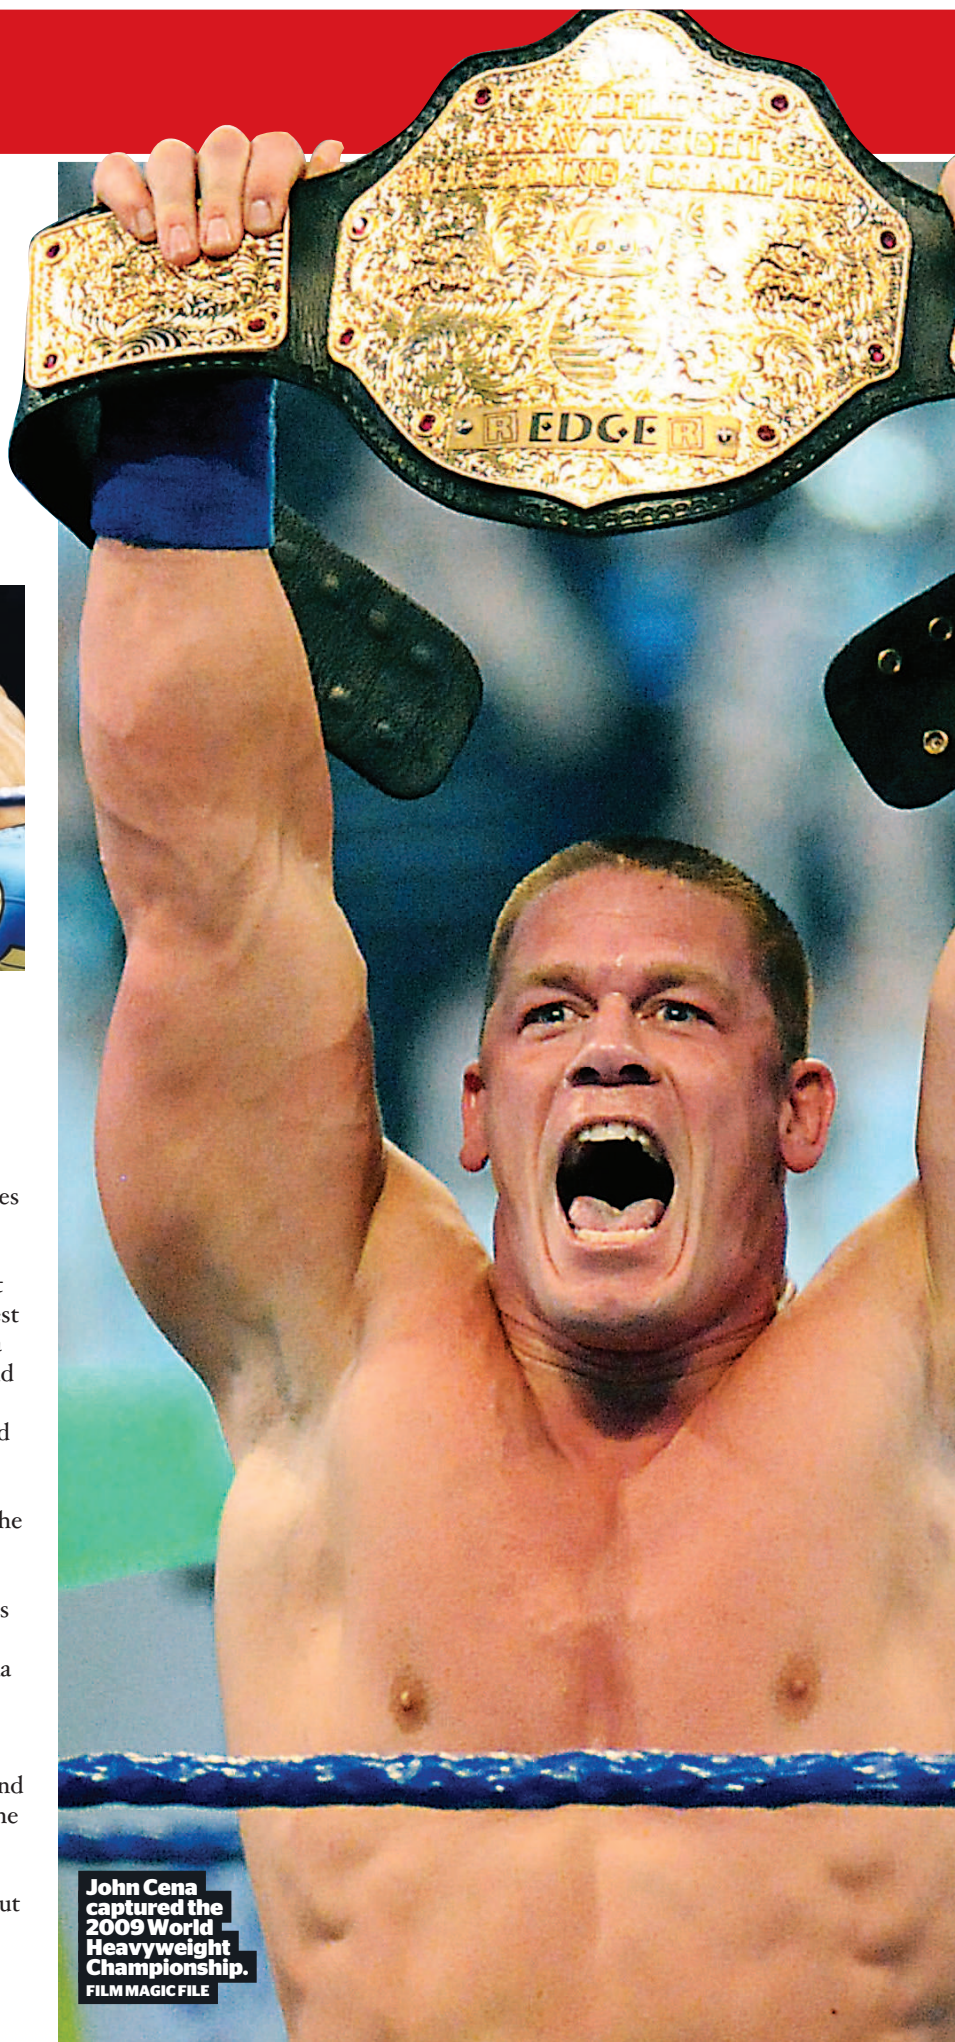

“Here’s a guy [Punk] who literally is a pure-bred wrestler, who loves the business and loves being able to go out and compete,” Cena said. “I can understand his frustration. But you can’t ignore the attraction of The Rock being involved.”

Cena himself has been heavily critical of The Rock for leaving wrestling—why hasn’t he been as critical of Punk’s upcoming departure?

“I know he’s not going to leave wrestling,” Cena said. “He’s leaving WWE. There’s a difference. CM Punk doesn’t feel he’s been treated properly in WWE. We’ve had this problem before. MVP was another one who felt he wasn’t treated well and has gone on to have a prolific career in Japan. Same with A-Train.

“I have more respect for a guy who leaves the company to better himself in another territory. But all roads lead back to Rome. If you’re successful, you’ll find your way back.”

Sports summer of discontent

Just some random musings on a typical midseason of mediocrity, underachievement and excuses here in Chicago.

First, the All-Star Game. Oh, I’d love to comment, but the truth is I didn’t see it.

And I shouldn’t have. Nobody cares about this event anymore. I know this because even the players make excuses not to go. I’ve never seen so many fake injuries.

As for our local representation, it doesn’t really matter. There is nothing a Cub or Sox player could have done Wednesday night to make up for what has been a disgusting first half.

I hate to use the word embarrassing because we’re all in this together, but that’s how I feel watching these teams squander $100 million-plus in payroll—each.

Money apparently can’t buy common sense, fundamentals, baseball acumen and all-around toughness these days. Although the N.Y. Yankees seem to find it when they go shopping. Weird.

For the Sox, I can’t watch anymore. There’s something about the way they can’t beat the Royals and Twins. I want to use a word here but it’s reserved for locker rooms and bars, sometimes playgrounds, that would get me in trouble. Michael Jordan used it once to describe how the Bulls played against the Pistons. That’s all I’ll say.

If you can’t beat the small-market chumps you’re supposed to dominate, beat it.

Same goes for the Cubs. We don’t speak of them much here because they’re so far removed from respectability; there is a large part of me that’s disowned them. Yes, they play in your city, but they’re like a big scab that won’t go away. Ointment won’t work, so you’re left to pick at it.

That’s what I do around here. I pick at scabs that won’t heal. Nice job description.

So pick at this. The Bears likely won’t be playing in the Hall of Fame Game because of the NFL lockout.

Thank God, I say. No need to rush back in and see Jay Cutler get killed, even though it’s only July. Yeah, time to start gearing up for the Bears already.

Enjoy your mediocrity.

1 Florida and 80-year-old manager Jack McKeon are in town. What happens?	The brittle way the Cubs are playing, we're in no position to mock anyone's age.	Yolk's early-bird special gets one more customer this week.	Early-afternoon dinners at local restaurants.	Epic naps in the dugout. It's Marlins-Cubs. He's not missing anything.	I could tell you, but I'd have to kill you. Wait, I'm gonna do that anyway. BWAHAHAHAHA!
2 Whom would you want in a Bears uniform: Plaxico Burress or Santana Moss?	If one of the choices is Plaxico Burress, it's usually pretty easy to pick the other guy.	Santana Moss: A Martz fit, less expensive, but I'd take either.	Moss.	How about both? Saxico Murress? Pantana Boss? My money's on Pantana Boss.	Either are an upgrade over what they have, but the Bears won't do it.
3 The Fire are in the U.S. Open Cup semifinals. Congratulate them.	Congratulations. To ensure that I won't jinx you, I've watched zero of your games. You're welcome.	Congratulations.	I knew you could do it.	Who?	Kudos. But you won't impress me until you can stop Chad Ochocinco from tweeting.
4 Michael Jordan's Charlotte Bobcats began layoffs. Why can't he pay them?	You want me to make a gambling joke, but I will pass. It's frickin' Jordan.	No winning. No money. And now the lockout? MJ's just starting another trend.	We are in a lockout. I hear a lot of teams are losing money as we speak.	Wait, a guy with a notorious predilection for gambling is bad with money? The hell you say.	He only spends his own money on ladies and cigars.
5 Why would Floyd Mayweather burn $100 bills in an Atlanta nightclub?	Because they frown upon that sort of thing here?	Trying to outdo a guy who was "making it rain."	Obviously, to show his unpatriotic loyalty to the country that he lives in.	To create a smoke-screen while he runs from Manny Pacquiao.	Doesn't matter. Money will be obsolete soon. Along with the human race. HAHAAAAHA!

Another header from Abby Wambach sends U.S. to World Cup final

The U.S. swept into the final of the sixth Women's World Cup with a convincing 3-1 victory over France in the semifinal Wednesday in Moenchengladbach, Germany.

The Americans will play Japan in Sunday's final in Frankfurt.

Goals by Lauren Cheney, Abby Wambach and Alex Morgan were more than enough to overcome a talented French team that did more of the attacking but could not turn those offensive forays into goals.

"This is our dream," said Wambach, whose last-minute goal tied the quarterfinal with Brazil, allowing the Americans to go on and win in a penalty shootout. "At this point, it's all about who wants it more. I just have a belief in this team and everybody feels it. We had to play nearly perfect. In the end we're in the final and that's all that matters."

The tie-breaking goal in the 79th minute came off a corner kick by Cheney, who had scored the first U.S. goal in the ninth minute.

Cheney's corner found the head of a charging Wambach, and the striker powered the ball into the French net for her third of the tournament.

No sooner had U.S. fan celebrations died down in the crowd than the Americans put the game on ice with a third goal. This time it was Morgan who scored.

In Wednesday's later semifinal, Japan beat Sweden 3-1 in Frankfurt.

GREATEST AMERICAN HEROES?

So, which U.S. women's soccer team members might we remember like Brandi Chastain from the 1999 World Cup-winning team? Here are a few candidates. REDEYE

Abby Wambach, 31

The high-flying forward has scored three goals in the tourney, including the game-tying header against Brazil on Sunday and the tie-breaking header against France on Wednesday.

Lauren Cheney, 23

The forward has two goals and three assists during the tourney so far. Her corner kick assist Wednesday was huge.

Hope Solo, 29

She has been a stalwart in goal for the U.S., and her save during penalty kicks vs. Brazil sealed the team's trip to Wednesday's semifinal.

» A franchise record crowd of 13,838 made up mostly of children at Wednesday's morning game at the Allstate Arena went home happy as the Sky beat Tulsa 72-54. Sylvia Fowles led the way with 21 points and 13 rebounds, while Epiphanny Prince added 11.

» Mark Cavendish of Britain wins a rainy 11th stage of the Tour de France on Wednesday.

» Looking for more offensive punch, the Fire announced addition of Argentinian playmaker Sebastian Grazzini on Wednesday. The 30-year-old midfielder most recently played for Buenos Aires area Club Atletico All-Boys, where he scored five goals in 22 appearances in 2010-11.

The cheapest around

Where to drink when money's low

By Emily Van Zandt

Ah, the days of college drink specials: $1 pitcher nights, 50-cent draws, $1 shots.

Those days may be over (and it's probably best for our waistlines that they are), but that doesn't mean you can't find a good deal outside your old college town. On any given day throughout the city, you're going to be able to find a spot selling a beer for a buck or two. If you're lucky, you can find a cocktail for under $5 or shots for less than $3. Check out our breakdown of some of Chicago's cheapest drinks:

Lakeview

On Sundays, drop by low-key English-styled spot Blokes & Birds (3343 N. Clark St.) for $1 shots of Evan Williams chased with $2 PBR tallboys. Long day at work has you craving a cocktail? Try Kirkwood Bar & Grill (2934 N. Sheffield Ave.) on Tuesdays for $3.50 Bacardi cocktails. And if you're looking to satisfy a drinking sweet-tooth, hit up The Full Shilling Public House (3724 N. Clark St.) on Fridays for $2 sweet tea vodka lemonades. Just watch out—they go down fast.

Lincoln Park

It's hard to beat the daily specials at Delilah's (2771 N. Lincoln Ave.), including $1 American beers and $2 shots of Jim Beam on Mondays (not to mention free pool). Brunch-time drinkers can down $3 mimosas or $4 screwdrivers and bloody marys on Saturdays at River Shannon (425 W. Armitage Ave.). If your friends demand group drinking, $10 draft pitchers at The Other Side Bar (2436 N. Clark St.) on Wednesdays are some of the cheapest around.

Bucktown/Wicker

These neighborhoods have a shortage of cheap beer if you stick to the regular stuff. (Read: Old Style and rarely have to shell out more than $2 for a beer.) W. Division St. offers Miller Lite on Tuesdays. Looking for something a little more friendly? Head to Lounge and Grill (1001 W. Damen Ave.) or for $3 pints of beer or a $4 mojito like cooling off for less than $5.

THE TICKER

Get more need-to-know Nightlife news at chicago.metromix.com/bars

» South Loop sports bar The Scout Waterhouse and Kitchen (1301 S. Wabash Ave.) is set to open Aug. 1.

» Watch for The Aviary (955 W. Fulton Market) to open its patio soon. Grant Achatz's Near West Side cocktail lounge also changed its schedule; it's now open Tuesday-Saturday.

River North

Even in a hot hangout 'hood like River North, there are a few spots where you can get in and get out for less than $20. Check out Rossi's (412 N. State St.) or Snickers (448 N. State St.) for an overall dive value or hit Bridge Bar (315 N. LaSalle St.) for $2 bottles of Schlitz on Mondays and Streeters Tavern (50 E. Chicago Ave.) on Mondays for $3 PBR or Old Style drafts. Wednesdays are a good time to hit English (444 N. LaSalle St.), when they offer $4 drafts and $6 house cocktails. For cheap day drinking, try District Bar (170 W. Ontario St.) on Saturdays for $3 mimosas or $6 Absolut bloody marys from 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

$3 mimosas or $6 Absolut bloody Marys at District

The Loop

After-work drinkers can rejoice in not having to lose an entire paycheck on happy hour. For beer, hit Poag Mahone's (333 S. Wells St.) on Fridays for $3 Miller Lite pints or The Beer Bistro (1061 W. Madison) in the South Loop on Mondays for $2 PBR drafts. Looking for a little more kick? Mondays mean $3 Jim Beam shots and cocktails at The Crossroads Bar & Grill (1120 W. Madison St.) or head to West End Bar & Grill (1326 W. Madison St.) on Thursdays for $5 bombs. And though we can't fully recommend it—there are $4 Rumplemintz shots at Jimmy Green's Bar & Grill (825 St. State St.) on Fridays. TGIF!

NIGHTCRAWLERS

SEEN ON THE SCENE AT ... ELIXIR, 3452 N. HALSTED ST.

Boystown bars aren't exactly known for subtlety, but Elixir might change that with its intimate interior and specialty cocktails that range from strawberry-basil lemonade to a Red Dynasty, a raspberry-flavored take on a Moscow mule. We caught up with some folks who were checking the place out for the first time. —CRAIG SEYMOUR

Carla Comes
28, accountant

How would you describe the vibe here?

It's trendy, but neighborhood-y, too. It has a very laid-back vibe. You can come here with friends and catch up and talk and hear each other over the music. It's perfect.

What are you drinking?

I'm drinking a cucumber-mint smash, because it's a beautiful summer day. [The drink] is really refreshing. It's delicious.

What's one essential thing that every woman needs for summer?

A maxi dress. It feels like a nightgown, but it's still a little bit sexy.

Allen McMillen
29, works in dermatology research

How does Elixir compare with other Boystown bars?

This is definitely one of the most elegant, upscale spots.

What's your quintessential summer drink?

It depends on what mood you catch me in. Something fruity. Anything with strawberries or lemonade in it.

What do you think every guy needs in his closet for summer?

Some tight jean shorts. They show off the legs and frame the upper body.

Hadley Rue
35, works in finance

What brings you out tonight?

It's a new place in the community to support, so I wanted to check it out.

What do you look for in a great nightspot?

I look for a place that's clean, that has an offering that's going to appeal to many different ages, as well as tastes.

What's your favorite summer drink?

Blueberry Stoli and 7UP. It's light and I just like a vodka drink with a flavor.

Beer & exercise

Apparently nothing will keep people from dancing at Bonny's on Saturday nights. No air conditioning and 90-plus outside? Whatever. Can't tell if someone spilled a beer on you or it's just the sweaty fellow behind you getting too close? It happens. That steam building up on the windows? Totally normal.

By 2 a.m. we'd hit the "it's too hot to drink" mark. By 3 a.m., it was straight disgusting. By 4 a.m. I needed a shower.

"There's a boycott on Bonny's until fall," was my immediate hung-over reaction the next morning. But then rationalizations started to trickle in: Was that exercise?

Elevated heart rate? Check. Profuse sweating? Check. Add some tennis shoes and add instructor and I'm pretty sure Bonny's is giving Zumba a drunken run for its money.

Never one to hit the gym with any amount of enthusiasm, I have now decided to work Bonny's into my regular aerobic routine.

And since I need to get some leg exercises in, you can catch me tackling the stairs at Delilah's two-at-a-time whenever someone

Emily Van Zandt

evanzandt@tribune.com

needs a beer from downstairs.

Arms? Count on me to drag the 12-packs to the next Pilsen house party. With those five extra blocks I'll be walking getting lost, I'll be ripped in no time.

Just add chasing down a few cabs in heels and the side-bend-to-pick-up-the-phone-I-dropped-for-the-roth-time and I'd call that a solid routine.

Bar fitness: It's gonna be a thing.

POTTER'S FINAL EXAM

A FLIP OF THE TIME-TURNER

Harry, Ron and Hermione sure have grown in the past 10 years. Page 29

MCT

So, you think you know Harry Potter, do you? The eighth and final film, "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2," opens Thursday, and it's time to test your knowledge of Potterology. You may have a wand from Ollivander's and an ample supply of Bertie Bott's Every Flavor Bean, but Muggle, if you haven't read—devoured, actually—all seven of the Harry Potter books, then you've got as much chance of passing our two-part quiz as Neville has of getting a passing grade in Potions. The first part we call our Nastily Exhausting Wizarding Trivia; the second part Outlaw Wizard Lore exam. Get out your quill and parchment, and begin.

Potions

1. Harry and Hermione each smelled three things when they sniffed Amortentia, the strongest love potion in the wizarding world. What were they?

2. In what book do we first learn there is a potion called the Draught of Living Death?

Defense Against the Dark Arts

3. To guard against Death Eaters masquerading as friends, the Ministry of Magic recommended setting up coded questions that no Death Eater could answer. What did Molly Weasley like her husband to call her in moments of intimacy?

4. What did the boggart turn into when it faced, in turn, Ron, Neville and Seamus?

Charms

5. Hermione excelled at Charms. If she were to use these charms on you, what would happen to you?

- a) Muffliato
- b) Expelliarmus
- c) Levicorpus

6. What are the three D's of disappearance?

Answers

1. Hermione smelled fresh-cut grass, new parchment and toothpaste. Harry detected the aroma of treacle tart, the polished handle of a broomstick and "something flowery that he thought he might have smelled at the Burrow."

2. The first book.
3. Molly-wobbles.

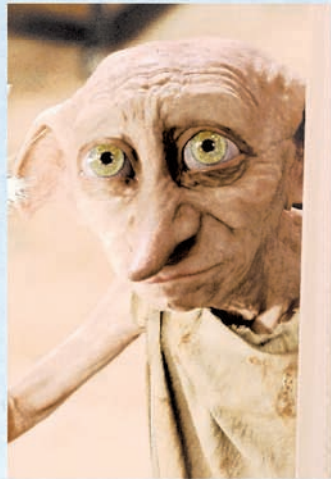

4. Ron's boggart turned into a spider; Neville's turned into Professor Snape; Seamus' boggart became a banshee.

5. a) Your ears would fill with a buzzing sound; b) you'd lose your wand or whatever you were holding; c) you'd be hoisted into the air by your ankle.

Transfiguration

7. What creatures did James Potter, Peter Pettigrew and Sirius Black transform into?

8. Who else are Animagi?

Herbology

9. What's the secret to transplanting young mandrakes?

10. What is Professor Sprout's favorite kind of fertilizer?

Care of Magical Creatures

11. We encounter a number of house elves in our seven years with Harry Potter. What was the name of Hepzibah Smith's house elf, who was wrongly blamed for her death?

12. How do you tell a Knarl from a hedgehog?

Divination

13. What did Professor Trelawney see in Harry's tea leaves the first day in class?

14. True or false—Firenze took over from Professor Trelawney when Umbridge fired her, and turned her classroom into a woodland forest.

He Who Must Not Be Named

1. In his vile effort to achieve immortality, Voldemort created Horcruxes containing pieces of his soul. Which of these objects is not a Horcrux?

- A. Tom Riddle's diary
- B. Salazar Slytherin's locket
- C. Godric Gryffindor's ruby
- D. Marvolo Gaunt's ring

2. Voldemort may have created Horcruxes from objects tied to the founders of Hogwarts. Who was not one of the founders?

- A. Rowena Ravenclaw
- B. Godric Gryffindor
- C. Newton Scamander
- D. Helga Hufflepuff

3. Voldemort and his Death Eaters are only too happy to cast Unforgivable Curses. Which of these is not one of them?

- A. Avada Kedavra
- B. Crucio
- C. Imperio
- D. Confundo

4. Legend has it that the three Deathly Hallows combined make their owner "the master of death." Which of these is not a Hallow?

- A. Sorcerer's Stone
- B. Cloak of Invisibility
- C. Elder Wand
- D. Resurrection Stone

Answers

1. C.
2. C.
3. D.
4. A.

6. Destination, determination, deliberation.
7. Stag, rat, dog.

8. Professor McGonagall, Rita Skeeter.

9. You have to wear earmuffs and move quickly.
10. Dragon dung fertilizer.
11. Hokey.

12. Offer it some milk; the Knarl is highly suspicious and will go berserk, thinking you're trying to poison it.

13. The Grim, except Ron said it looked like a hippo or a sheep.

14. False. He took over the class, but being unable to climb the ladder to Professor Trelawney's tower, he had a ground-floor classroom.

Final tally: 8 movies and 6 fails

It all. Comes down. To this. Actually, the final showdown between Harry (Daniel Radcliffe) and the dark forces of evil doesn't feel that spectacular on screen. Still, seemingly the entire planet can't wait to see the conclusion of a series in which only two of the movies ("Goblet of Fire" and "Half-Blood Prince") have checked "yes" in the entertainment column and "no" in the boring column.

The buzz: Don't forget, this review doesn't comment on the Potter books, just the movies. Gladly the final installment—taken from the second part of the last book in J.K. Rowling's series—clocks in at a, um, comparatively lean 118 minutes, though yet again the movie adds briefly appearing new characters while offering few new flourishes for existing ones.

The verdict: Epic battle? Please. Director David Yates moves at only two speeds: Super-charged yet not impactful and labored, faux-majestic stillness. He constantly misjudges moments by underplaying events that should be cool, like jumping off of a dragon. "Part 2" has more action and special effects than "Part 1," but even fewer memorable sequences. For the last time: Uninteresting characters pointing wands and firing CGI sparks looks hokey, not cool or magical. The movie checks off bits from the book (horcruxes, resurrection stones, yadda yadda) without generating any excitement, and then tacks on a ridiculous epilogue that spoils what was almost a poignant moment before. It's the end of the wizard as we know him, and I feel nothing.

Who you callin' 'Seven'?

The Hollywood class of 2029 is rocking some pretty interesting names

By Dana Moran | REDEYE

Summer has arrived, and with it, the hordes of celebrity babies we've been waiting for with bated breath. But this being Hollywood and all, these proud famous parents couldn't go with boring old normal names. That would just be a waste of star-power. We took a look at the meaning behind these new tots' names to see what their parents were thinking—and whether the kids be haunted by them. DAMORAN@TRIBUNE.COM

PARENTS:
VICTORIA AND
DAVID BECKHAM

Name meaning: No official word from the British pair, but it's thought that their daughter's middle name is a reference to her dad's former soccer number, the hour and month in which she was born and her birth weight.

We say: With three big brothers to stand up for her, the Beckhams could've named this little lady "Mergatroid" and she would've been fine.

PARENTS:
MIRANDA KERR
AND ORLANDO BLOOM

Name meaning: Kerr chose her son's middle name as a tribute to her first boyfriend, who was killed in a car accident.

We say: A sweet gesture on the part of both parents. Their next kid is sure to be named whatever Bloom wants.

PARENT:
DENISE RICHARDS

Name meaning: Richards let her daughters, Sami and Lola, choose their adopted baby sister's first name, and picked her mother's name for Eloise's middle name.

We say: Lucky for Richards her girls picked a normal name. We tried to name our cat "Girl Kitty" when we were 3.

PARENTS:
PINK AND CAREY HART

Name meaning: Pink offered a veeery detailed description of her choice, saying that her favorite tree, the willow, is unbreakable, and sage is cleansing and sacred.

We say: This kid will be stinking of patchouli and living in a van in no time!

PARENTS:
NATALIE PORTMAN AND
BENJAMIN MILLEPIED

Name meaning: Also spelled "alef," it's the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet and also is the number one.

We say: Either this little guy is going to have a huge ego or other kids are going to call him "Alf." If they even have "Alf" in the future.

Mean guy

Simon Cowell is back to his nasty ways in a promo clip for "The X Factor" on Fox, calling one singer "deluded." He and Paula Abdul seem to be scrapping again as well, with Paula shown swiping at a bowl Cowell is holding and sloshing him with liquid. Just like the good ol' days.

Fiasco's farewell

Lupe Fiasco is saying #adios to Twitter—at least for now. The West Side native, who has more than 722,000 followers, announced Wednesday that he handed over his account to indie artist Nikki Jean and thanked his tweeps for their support: "...it was fun while it lasted... i will see you all on the road soon."

In and out

Mila Kunis might not be able to go on that November date to the Marine Corps Ball with Sgt. Scott Moore—"Access Hollywood" reports she has a filming conflict—but "Friends With Benefits" co-star Justin Timberlake has been invited in her absence. Marine Kelsey De Santis posted a YouTube video asking out JT, people.com reports. In her video, she jokes, "If you can't go, all I can say is, cry me a river." No word yet from Timberlake.

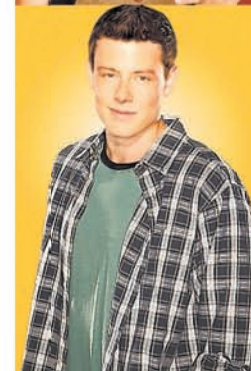

Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie

MR. & MRS. PITT?

Talk about your Hollywood wow. After spending six years together raising six children, Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie will marry this summer, according to a splashy Us Weekly cover story. The mag cites unnamed sources, naturally, so the nuptials aren't exactly official. But that won't stop us from speculating what Jennifer Aniston is thinking right now.

Graduation day

"Glee" is sending three of its high school stars out into the real world. Lea Michele (from top), Cory Monteith and Chris Colfer will not be back for Season 4, show creator Ryan Murphy told The Hollywood Reporter. Murphy said the decision was an attempt to keep the stories "true to life." You know, like when a football team breaks into song and dance in the middle of a game.
